Drinks List

India has a long but less-storied history with alcohol. Historically, tonics featuring a blend of indigenous ingredients were used as medicines, as part of ayurvedic tradition of Anupana centred around the Pitta Dosha; stimulating the digestive fire 'Agni'. Fitting, then, that the custom within Indian high society is to imbibe in aged spirits both before and after meals.

British colonial presence in India during the Victorian era played a significant role in shaping a growing drinking culture across the country, bringing a taste for spirits and mixed drinks.

No cocktail better exemplifies this history than the "Gin and Tonic," originally developed in India as a way to make quinine (used to treat malaria) more palatable by mixing it with gin and soda water. s This drink eventually became a staple of colonial-era cocktail culture in India.

Which is exactly why we don't feature one on our list.

Hot Infusion Tea

The popularity of tea across the Indian subcontinent is well documented - which means sourcing the very best examples is a job we entrust only to Henrietta Lovell of the Rare Tea Company. An old friend of Chet's from his time at Mugaritz, Henrietta's choices of the finest, sustainably-produced and fair trade of artisan teas can be found below.

BiBi Coffee

We source our coffee beans from Mysore, Karnataka before roasting them to our recipe in London. If legends are to be believed, coffee made its way to India by virtue of seven beans smuggled out of Arab-ruled Ethiopia in the 1670s. We use a powerful, spice-driven blend which makes use of hand-harvested and selected Arabica and Robusta beans, grown near Mysore, Karnataka. We recommend enjoying it as an espresso or with a touch of milk as a macchiato.
